ASTORIA, OREGON:

THURSDAY, AUGUST 17, 1882

J. F. HALLORAN, Editor

Astoria Chamber of Commerce.

It is an accepted fact in all circumstances that "the Lord helps those who help themselves." Particularly is this the case where the good to be done depends mainly upon the efforts of the parties most interested. In all organized and progressive communities there is a society organized having for its object and purpose the advancement of the city's best interests and the furnishing aid to all enterprises looking to municipal aggrandizement. These societies and organizations, are of value in direct ratio to their efforts and personal efficiency. We have here in Astoria an organization—the Chamber of Commerce—which is directly illustrative of the good that can thus be accomplished. In Portland 'tis but necessary to read the records of their Board of Trade to see what immense benefit has accrued to that city through the organized efforts of her business men. Our home institution has also a worthy record. Among the many points advocated and endorsed by the Astoria Chamber of Commerce may be mentioned its successful effort to have the U. S. revenue cutter detailed for Columbia river service; the work of building a light house on Tillamook rock is due primarily to the petitions and representations of that body; the improvement of the Columbia river bar has been especially advocated and treated upon by the Chamber of Commerce, and the lack of success in its efforts in that direction are due wholly to extraneous causes. No place can exist having so many natural advantages as Astoria without having enemies. This is perfectly natural. Diversity of interests and supposed necessity for consequent antagonism on the part of more wealthy competitors often result in producing an opposition that has no real reason for existence. Time and perseverance are wonderful allies, and in this case must be called in. The work on the Locks and the Cascades has been facilitated by reason of the memorials from our local trade body, and the presence of the Shubrick at Astoria is due to the most strenuous efforts on the part of the gentlemen composing that body. The office was located here, but other and presumably weightier reasons were advanced, which moved the office to Portland while the headquarters of the vessel remained here. The signal station now to be built at the Cape, and connected by line and cable with Astoria, was especially petitioned for and advocated by our Chamber of Commerce. We instance these matters which have all redounded to the good of the place, as illustrative of the good that that body has been. It still has a great deal to accomplish. Vast and pressing are the needs of the place; concert of action and continued unanimity of effort are required to produce necessary help from those who can aid us if out case is properly represented. We again cite the Portland Board of Trade as a good model; they work hard for Portland; they deserve credit for their persistence. Our Chamber of Commerce works for Astoria. In one sense the interests of the two communities are identical; and the two commercial bodies can work in harmony for the advancement of the common good. In conclusion, we would suggest that of late there has not been that activity on the part of the Chamber of Commerce that characterized its former course. We think this is due more to the lack of interest manifested in its proceedings by our citizens than to any other cause. The greater part of the members have worked hard for the success of the measures advocated, without meeting that unanimity of individual endorsement which is always an incentive to a good purpose. Concert of action and hearty expression of support on the part of individuals, is in this case one of the most important factors in securing ultimate success.

The Germans are still grumbling about their tariff. We have a commission that takes in old tariffs to mend. Let the Germans send theirs over here for repairs.
